

HOW TO talk about God...?

Conversation Starters:

When the conversation slows down, try asking:

"What's something God has been teaching you lately?"

You don't have to teach the Bible—just create space for people to share what they're learning.

Open your Bible look up our memory verse in Colossians 3:16 and ask:

"What stands out to you in this passage?"

You might be surprised how much people see when given the chance to slow down and reflect.

Read one or two of the Truth Declarations and ask:

"What do you think this teaches us about God?"

The goal isn't to impress people with what we know. It's to discover God together.

Try this around the table:

"How have you seen God working this week?"

Sometimes the best conversations begin by simply noticing what God is already doing.

After reading Scripture memory together in Colossians 3:16, ask:

"What challenges you the most about this passage?"

God often grows us through the parts we'd rather skip.

Looking for an easy conversation starter? Ask:

"Is there a verse that's encouraged you recently?"

People may forget a lot of things, but they rarely forget the Scriptures that carried them through a hard season.

Keep it practical. Ask:

"What's one thing we can actually do this week because of what we just read?"

The goal isn't just knowing God's Word....it's living it.

Around the table this week, ask:

"If someone asked you what God has been teaching you lately, what would you say?"

Simple questions often lead to deeper conversations than complicated ones.

Before everyone leaves, ask:

"How can we pray for each other this week?"

A great meal feeds the body. Prayer strengthens the soul.
